Health director gets more hours, benefits package

Board to discuss Hurley's probation

By Ben Carlson
General Manager

More hours. Health insurance. Vacation time. Sick time.

Embattled health director Brandon Hurley received each of those benefits last Wednesday night during a special-called meeting of the Anderson County Board of Health.

Hurley, who had his hours cut from full time to 22.5 each week last month as the health board expressed dissatisfaction with his job performance, will now be allowed to work 100 hours a month, which is enough to trigger state benefits.

The board met and immediately went into a closed session to determine if it would grant Hurley the additional hours and benefits.

When it emerged, the board voted 7-1, with Judge-Executive John Wayne Conway casting the lone dissenting vote. Voting for the measure were board members Keith Klink, Aaron Goodpastor, Jaime Cooper, Don Wells, board chairman Andrew Bustin and Sandy Ritchey.

It remained unclear Tuesday how much the additional hours and benefits will cost.

Bustin said at the start of the meeting that the previous decision to cut Hurley to 22.5 hours "may have been a mistake. Bustin said he received a call from Ron

Postal worker pleads guilty to stealing veterans' drugs

Hawkins facing five-year sentence

From staff reports

A Lawrenceburg woman admitted last week in federal court that she stole prescription drugs intended to local veterans while she was a mail carrier in the Lawrenceburg post office.

Pamela J. Hawkins, 40, pleaded guilty and admitted that she stole 10 to 11 drug parcels over the past year and a half that were intended for veterans. The parcels contained hydrocodone pills, according to a news release from the US Attorney's Office.

There was no evidence that Hawkins was distributing the pills she admitted stealing.

The investigation began when the postal service's Office of Inspector General received complaints from individuals who weren't receiving the drug parcels mailed to them by the Department of Veterans Affairs, according to a news release.

Hawkins is scheduled to appear for sentencing in Frankfort on March 13. She faces a maximum sentence of five years.

Any sentence following a conviction would be imposed by the court after consideration of the United States Sentencing Guidelines and the federal statute governing the imposition of sentences, according to a news release.

Magistrates lash out at clerk over fees

By Ben Carlson
General Manager

The effort to unify city and county government remains stuck in neutral and is likely doomed to stall.

The Anderson County Fiscal Court on Tuesday tabled for the second time a proposed ordinance that would have authorized the creation of a committee to study unification, and the issue isn't likely to come up again.

"It won't be back on the agenda anytime soon," said Judge-Executive John Wayne Conway, who voted for the motion to table.

Only Magistrate Buddy Sims voted against the motion.

In August, the fiscal court

Turner Elementary students introduce school newspaper

By Meaghan Downs
Staff writer

Print journalism is alive and hot off the presses at Robert B. Turner Elementary.

The staff of the Turner Times, composed of fourth and fifth grade students from teacher Lauren Cooper's Gifted and Talented class, churns out their new school newspaper every month.

Cooper, in her second year as adviser for the class, said creating a newspaper was a tangible means of getting students excited about writing.

"I thought they'd get excited about writing, knowing it'd be published," she said. "Getting their work published for the school to see is something they'd be proud of."

For about one hour in class every week, the 30 students write and submit news copy, sports stories, calendar items and opinion pieces to Cooper, who designs the pages in a word document.

Once the paper is formatted, students and staff can receive an issue for 10 cents, or sub-

Horseman, the state's acting human resource branch manager, who said that in order for a director to be a direct supervisor, the director needs to work at least 100 hours a month.

Horseman apparently based the call on guidelines set forth from the state's Local Health Department Employment Personnel Council.

In minutes dated Oct. 4, 2006, council members were discussing state retirees returning to work part-time, and if they should be allowed to supervise full-time employees.

"It is in my personal opinion ... that a part-time employee cannot fairly evaluate a full-time staff member," one council member is quoted as saying in the minutes.

Along with having his hours cut, Hurley was placed on probation for 90 days. It remains unclear if that probationary period has started because the health board has yet to finalize performance guidelines under which Hurley must operate.

A committee chaired by board member Matt Byers met two weeks ago, mostly in closed session, to begin that process.

During that meeting, committee members quizzed County Treasurer Dudley Shyrock, asking him if he is willing to examine the health department's budget

During last week's board meeting, that topic was not addressed, but Bustin said it will likely come up when the health board meets again Dec. 14 at 6:30 p.m. at the health department building located on Glensboro Road in Lawrenceburg. The meeting is open to the public.

cal court and city council met in a joint meeting and each approved having their attorneys draft an ordinance. Since then, it has been tabled by the fiscal court and has not been addressed by the city council.

Unification discussions started over a year ago when local retired attorney Walter Patrick called together groups of citizens to explore the idea.

In short, Patrick called for the city and county to unify into one government body, which would ostensibly save duplication of services and streamline efficiency.

During the joint meeting in August, dozens of residents spoke in favor of unification, in large measure to allow a new countywide form of government to take financial control of the county's taxing districts, including fire, health and library.

Clerk gets tongue lashing over proposed fees

County Clerk Jason Denny's proposed budget for 2012 was unanimously approved Tuesday morning by the fiscal court, but only after two magistrates spoke out strongly against it.

In his budget, Denny proposed a $2 fee for people who come to his office and need documents notarized.

That didn't set well with Magistrate Forrest Dale Stevens, who said he didn't think charging people for something as simple as notarizing documents is right.

That touched off a heated conversation between Magistrate David Ruggles and Denny. Ruggles, who had already heard a proposal to implement a fee for residents to obtain an electrical permit, became angry.

"I'm just sick and tired of all of these [expletive] fees," Ruggles said. "Every time we turn around, we're getting nickled and dimed to death."

Denny explained that there are costs associated with notarizing documents, which also didn't set well with Ruggles.

"It doesn't cost $2 to have someone sign a piece of paper, Jason," Ruggles said.

Then Ruggles questioned why Denny's salary, which is set by the state and based on county population and years in service, increased 6 percent this year to $87,000.

"That's just an example of why the system is broken," Ruggles said. "There's no reason for your salary to go up that much, not when the cost of living is less than 1.5 percent."

"Until you step into my shoes, I don't think you have the right to say that," Denny responded.

Ruggles apologized for cussing, adding, "If you want to charge $2 for that, that's your business."

Sheriff's budget OK'd

With no discussion, Sheriff Troy Young's 1.17 million budget was unanimously approved Tuesday morning by the fiscal court.

Electrical permit fee rejected

Magistrates unanimously rejected an idea that would have forced people to pay a $10 fee for electrical permits.

Code Enforcement Officer Doug Ingram said that fee is not in place since the county contracted with a private company to perform electrical permits. Ingram estimated that it costs the county roughly $900 a year to issue the permits.

Ingram also reported that he issued no building permits for single family homes in November, and only one for a manufactured home.

For the year, only 16 single family home permits have been issued, compared to 33 for the same period in 2010.

Time for Gov. Beshear to reign in health cabal

Column as I see 'em ... Now that he has been comfortably re-elected, perhaps Gov. Beshear will take a moment and throw a rope around those in his health cabinet who can't seem to keep their meddling noses out of Anderson County's business.

Our 12-person health board, which consists of the county's CEO and members with more degrees than a thermometer is perfectly capable (these days, at least) of making decisions without interference from state health officials.

Since late summer, those officials have stuck their noses into nearly every aspect of the local board's governance, including the acting state health director's threat to veto a vote by the board to fire its current director.

Unbridled Spirit, Gov. Beshear? How about Unbridled Arrogance?

Want another example? Just last week the state's acting human resource manager (what's with all the interim titles, by the way?) stuck his nose in the health board's decision to cut the director's hours from full time to 22.5 each week in an all-out effort to salvage the department's sagging finances. The move saved salary, but also fringe benefits that the department simply can no longer afford.

The interim HR guy cried foul and from the bowels of Frankfort produced so-called "guidelines" that claim the director needs at least 100 hours per month, which coincidentally requires the fringe benefits to be paid, too.

Fearing a lawsuit should it decide differently, the health board relented and gave the director the additional hours and benefits.

We've come to a sad pass when local officials have to make decisions based first on fear of being sued by the state, second on what's right.

That these meddlers are so intent on meddling is disturbing, but far from surprising.

After all, the state health cabal is constructed primarily to protect the interests of its employees first, with taxpayers being somewhere down the line. The cabal, with an enabling assist from the state legislature, set up a system by which it, not local elected officials, stack health boards as it sees fit, and empowers these unelected people to create budgets and set tax rates with virtually no accountability to taxpayers.

But here in Anderson County something has gone drastically wrong, thanks to a handful of relatively new health board members unafraid to ask tough questions and make the taxpayer their top priority.

The childlike, foot-stomping response from your team, governor, would be comical if the department's budgetary problems weren't so dire.

That's why, Gov. Beshear, it's time for you to step up and tell the people to whom you've doled out all these temporary titles to stay in their lanes. If those on our health board need help, they'll certainly ask for it.

Speaking of going terribly wrong, just think how much foot-stomping there'd be in Frankfort if the fiscal court disbanded the current health and library taxing districts and placed their budgets and tax rates directly under its watchful eye.

Doing just that is the overriding reason the public wants the city council and fiscal court to approve a unification study.

Although both passed resolutions back in August, which required their attorneys to draft ordinances to that effect, don't expect those to ever see the light of day.

The city council hasn't so much as mentioned the topic since August, and the fiscal court seems intent to continue tabling it in perpetuity, which it did again Tuesday morning.

That's fine with me, so long as the fiscal court does the right thing and reins in the health and library taxing districts — an action no one disputes can be done.

Doing so will take a fair amount of political willpower and magistrates unafraid to tell Frankfort that it's wrong, no matter how loud the protectionists who set up these cabals scream.

Speaking of willpower, hats off to the high school football team and its coaches for a tremendous ride to the state finals.

Winning it all would have been great, but Anderson Countians should take solace in knowing that the final score Saturday night is by no means the barometer by which this group of young men should or will be judged.

It's easy to tell young people involved in sports that they should lose like they win, with good sportsmanship and dignity, but another thing altogether to make that happen.

Coach Mark Peach and his staff, with some obvious help from the players' parents, accomplished that difficult task, which in the long run will make these young men better adults, parents and leaders than a state football title ever would.

Students ignite journalism fire

To be a journalist is like being on fire.

Extinguish one flame — deadlines, disgruntled readers or writer's block — and more start to smolder in its place.

I've toured a prison and endured its pat-down policy, been essentially banned from a senior center, and had my student newspaper pulled from the racks for publishing a story about an Ecstasy drug bust on campus.

So it's nice to remind myself sometimes why I voluntarily chose this profession.

All it took was another newspaper.

The Turner Times staff, composed of 30 students from Turner Elementary, are probably the greenest of rookie reporters.

They are fourth and fifth graders, after all.

And although there is more than a decade of life experience between us, our concerns about being members of the media are eerily alike.

Meaghan Downs
Staff writer

Deadline pressure, the embarrassment of public mistakes, writer's block.

I asked the same question of those students I interviewed, "Why do you like working for the newspaper?"

Not every answer was the same.

But I was impressed with one student's reply about a story she was particularly proud of: "I just don't want them to read it and be done, I want them to do something about it."

Her answer was what I needed to hear and remember.

That's passion. That's a flame you don't want to snuff out.

Remembering Pearl Harbor

Today marks the 70th anniversary of the attacks on Pearl Harbor, "the day of infamy."

As the years pass, living survivors are dwindling. There are only about 8,000 Pearl Harbor survivors left in the United States, out of the 84,000 Americans who witnessed the original Japanese attack on the American base.

Bearcats are proven heroes, winners

To the editor:

As I watched the 5A championship game online and watched the Bearcats fight for every yard, the amazing thing was that through out the entire game the announcers commended Anderson County for their attitude.

At half time, they reminded the watchers and listeners that Anderson would not give up; that Coach Mark Peach would come out with a game plan; that the players reflected their coach's attitude in a positive way.

Also, they stated that Lawrenceburg would not be leaving soon. They would stand behind the Bearcats right until the end.

To our family, one of which is a Lil' Bearcat football player, the Bearcats players and coaches are heroes and deserve a hero's welcome. When you leave a game such as they played and a season that has been remarkable with a good reputation such as our Bearcats have, that is the making of a true hero and heroism.

The scoreboard does not always reflect the true winners.

Report abuse to protect children, elderly

To the editor:

During these turbulent times we are hearing daily of mistreatment of our children and the elderly.

People, wake up! We are all responsible for our most vulnerable, not just social workers, school nurses, teachers, police and other law enforcement.

We, as family and friends, neighbors, co-workers or even fellow shoppers have a responsibility to report and follow up on unusual and questionable situations concerning our children and aging citizens.

They need our protection now. We can make a huge difference in preventing another tragedy like the abuse and death of a little girl in Todd County. She was [allegedly] beaten to death by her stepbrother with a tire tool in their driveway after years of sibling abuse.

We must be observant, report and follow up and even report again and again until action is taken.

We must stick our necks out, even if it gets uncomfortable.

We can't let little Amy Dye die in vain. We are our brothers and sisters keepers. God bless the USA.

Fat bunnies, foggy August mean rough winter

Happy December, everyone. Let the race begin.

You now have 18 days before Christmas.

Winter will officially arrive on the 22nd of this month and before you get too concerned, we normally only have a little snow by then.

Sinc, we're nearing the end of the year, I thought we should take a short stroll down memory lane.

Last December, we had had only 1.6 inches of snow by Christmas, but it made for a white one. By the end of January we had another 1.26 inches fall. It was the month of February that got us.

Last February, we had 4.65 inches of snow and that made for a month of hiking up my hill. Not something I want to repeat. Mother Nature has big plans for us this winter, so start stocking that wood now. You might as well pick up a generator while you're at it.

There are a couple of methods left in order to predict the number of big dumps we'll get this winter. A third method had to be done in August and I'll get to that later. So, our two options leave us with counting forward or backward.

If you want to count forward, then wait for our first snow and count the days ahead until Christmas. If you want to count backwards then count the number of days between our first snowfall and the preceding new moon. The number of days tell us the number of big snows. November's new moon was on the 25th and December's is on the 24th.

That third method was the one that hit the nail on the head last year. Since I'm busier than a three-legged cat in the sand box in August, I used the computer to travel back in time. If we count the number of foggy mornings in August, that will tell us the number of dumps in the winter. We had five foggy mornings this August. Oh boy!

Other signs I also like to look at are fur and fat. Strange as that sounds, the thickness of the coats on horses and cows are a pretty good predictors. While I have neither here on the farm, I have friends that do.

My reports are the coats are thicker than thick. We're talking Star War's Chewbaka hairy. My friend Denny Markwell processes a lot of deer each year and we just chatted last week. Denny

Can't save them all, but walking dogs is a start

If the idea of walking dogs appeals to you, but you are not interested in dealing with hassles such as obtaining licenses or procuring clients, volunteering to walk dogs for your local Humane Society can be a perfect opportunity to express your love and compassion for animals.

Offering your services makes a positive impact on your community and a huge difference in the lives of many homeless dogs.

Because of space limitations, many dogs housed in shelters or rescues live in cramped areas. The one-on-one attention they are given is limited because of the sheer number of animals that must be tended by an often small, busy staff.

Health and behavior problems can develop if dogs do not get adequate exercise and interaction with humans, and these problems can lessen their chances of eventual adoption. You could help make them happier and healthier today and more likely to find a forever home tomorrow.

Volunteering at a Humane Society has many rewards. It is great motivation to exercise and get fresh air. The companionship and affection returned by grateful animals is priceless.

You may even meet up with like-minded people who could become great friends. If you have not pursued dog-walking as a business because you do not have much experience handling dogs, the shelter staff will likely be willing to educate you and offer tips.

It's free hands-on experience that you can apply to future career choices or personal interests. In the process, you will make the world a kinder place for many lonely, abandoned and homeless animals.

To become a volunteer, simply call the Adoption Center at 839-8339.

You can also contact us via email at ahs_40342@yahoo.com. The staff will be grateful and happy to hear from you.

You may not be able to rescue every dog, but you can give homeless dogs extra love and attention that they need desperately.

Making spelling mistakes in the newspaper, however, is a different story. Garmon said she's sometimes nervous about people asking why she chose to write about something, or finding a spelling mistake in her article.

"You don't do everything right, but you can't put your head down," Garmon, who admitted she wasn't a good speller, said. "You're always going to make mistakes."

Her favorite article was one she wrote on homelessness, a piece Garmon didn't want people to read only.

"I just don't want them to read it and be done, I want them to do something about it," she said.

Madalyn Welch feels the same way with her book reviews, especially when it comes to "Diary of a Wimpy Kid: Cabin Fever," the sixth book in the popular "Wimpy Kid" series.

"It's a very interesting book and it might even teach you a lesson," Welch said.

The fourth grader says she likes to write her opinions, even though putting a paper together takes hard work and concentration.

"It makes me feel like I'm encouraging other students to read books they might enjoy," she said.

A sports enthusiast and football player, fourth grader Zachary Labhart enjoys writing about sports for The Turner Times simply because he loves playing them.

"I just watch sports and play them and have fun," he said.

It doesn't hurt to be able to sit next to his friends and write, as well, he said. The hardest part for Zachary? Typing. Last issue, he only wrote one paragraph. This time, he's writing five.

"It's hard to type, for me," Labhart said.

Cooper said the newspaper helps her students reach certain standards, like being able to type one full page in one sitting, as well as the curriculum map for persuasive writing.

Cooper said she also appreciates the fact that Turner Elementary staff and students are reading their work and giving feedback, and hopes that more people will go online and comment on the Turner website about the newspaper.

"I think that's what's been really cool, the excitement for other students and teachers," Cooper said.

Working professionals credit high school co-op for career paths

By Meaghan Downs
 Staff writer

Students need not look any further for a taste of the working world than their high school co-op program.

And for a few Anderson County high school graduates, they need only to look back on their co-op experience to figure out where their careers began.

Glen Drury, who has advised the Anderson County high school co-op program for about eight years, estimated that about 20 percent of students remain in the same career field they chose to shadow as high school students.

"As a young person, discovering what you don't want to do can be just as helpful," he said.

Former co-op student Amanda Warford, for instance, thought she wanted to be an English teacher.

She told employer and attorney Thomas Jones as much when she began her year at his law office through the co-op program in Fall 2005.

"He told me he was going to make a lawyer out of me, and I actually laughed at him," Warford said.

Warford started as an administrative assistant, but as she stayed on to work over breaks and summer vacations, she took on more responsibilities such as drafting documents and discussing courtroom strategies.

Now in her final year of law school at the University of Louisville with a two-year clerkship with a federal judge lined up, Warford said she has no regrets about the path she's chosen.

"It's kind of put my life where I think it needs to be," she said of the co-op program.

She said she understands the emphasis put on taking Advanced Placement courses, but the co-op program offers experience, which is equally valuable.

"While I think that's really good, I think that a lot of employers now, particularly in the market, are looking for skills and experience and I think the co-op program provides for that," Warford said.

Tyler Smith, a credit risk assistant at Century Bank in Lawrenceburg, started working in a co-op partnership back in middle school.

He knew he was good at math, and liked it. Smith said he figured he was going to be a math teacher and basketball coach.

Then in high school he learned about a friend doing the co-op program with Century Bank, and submitted his resume.

Now Smith, who graduated from the University of Kentucky with an economics degree, has been with the bank for about six years, moving up from bank teller to a loan assistant training to be a loan officer. He still gets to coach basketball as an assistant coach for the middle school girls' team.

He said he enjoys seeing the other side of the loan process, "just breaking down the numbers and finding percentages," Smith said.

Another co-op alumna, Hannah

Sutherland, enjoys the challenge that comes with selling insurance at State Farm.

At first, she said, she only joined the co-op program to get out of taking classes she didn't need.

Now, she loves the satisfaction of helping and interacting with customers, as well as knowing that selling insurance is something she'd like to make into a career.

"I'm lucky to have a job," Sutherland said, "much less one that I love."

Sutherland, a junior at the University of Kentucky, currently works at the State Farm office part-time while living and attending college classes in Lexington.

She said without participating in the co-op program, she wouldn't have known that insurance was something she wanted to do.

"I would still be searching for what I wanted to do with my life after college," she said.

And that's exactly what Drury was aiming for.

"Work's going to be sometimes hard, but it won't be unbearable," Drury said. "I'd like young people to look at work not as a dirty word for them."

A small, rural church in Anderson County, Fellowship Baptist Church, takes first place in the 2011 Christmas parade. Many hours went in to the preparation of the float, including 700 handmade paper flowers and a wooden stable. The color theme of the float was red, white and green. The significance of these colors is addressed in the following quote from the pastor, Timothy Johnson: 'With a rich tradition dating back to the 1800s, Fellowship Baptist Church reminds us with one word, that as Christians, we all share in the common bonds of love, acceptance and forgiveness.' Front, from left: Jake Boros, Henry Thompson, Holly Thompson, Tristan Gee. Second row: Sharon Johnson, Anne Thompson, Cindy Gee, Myranda Gee, Joyce Bingham, Eldon Bingham. Copenhaver 4-H Club meets

The Copenhaver Cheetahs 4-H Club at Robert B. Turner Elementary met Nov. 18 at school.

The meeting was called to order by President Sydney Pinkston.

We did roll call by being asked what our favorite color is.

Our secretary, Jenni Beasley, read the minutes from the last meeting. Our program for the day was about using money wisely.

Our vice president, Marlie Garmon, had the following people help with presenting the program: Christina Woods, Caleb Hatter, Hayley Stowers, Tyler Warford and Kaylee Darnell.

We learned a lot about saving money and the importance of saving money.

Our next meeting was not yet determined.

Turn to God in bad times, and good

When do we most often cry out to God? Usually it is in time of great need or distress. It often happens when we have had a personal loss, financial loss or perhaps a death or illness.

Belief in God during hard times is a normal human attribute. I inherently believe even atheists, deep down, realize this whole thing isn't one big mistake and that God does exist.

It is certainly fine to call out to God when we are in distress, but how important is it for us to do the same during good times, too?

Jess Thompson
Guest columnist

How often do we forget God when things are seemingly going our way? The noble Biblical character King David had virtually conquered the world around him. In 2 Samuel, David conquered the Jebusites, Philistines, Arameans, Edomites, and the Ammonites, each one being a strong nation.

Importantly, David did not take personal credit for these events and, in Psalms 18: 43-50, he describes his relationship with God. "You have delivered me from the attacks of the people; you have made me the head of nations. People I did not know now serve me, foreigners cower before me; as soon as they hear of me, they obey me. They all lose heart; they come trembling from their strongholds. "The Lord lives! Praise be to my Rock! Exalted be God my Savior! He is the God who avenges me, who subdues nations under me, who saves me from my enemies. You exalted me above my foes; from violent people you rescued me.

"Therefore I will praise you, Lord, among the nations; I will sing the praises of your name.

"He gives his king great victories; he shows unfailing love to his anointed, to David and to his descendants forever." Now, next time things are really going your way, try and step back and remember who is truly in charge. Regardless, we should acknowledge God in good times and bad.

"Don't judge me by my past, I don't live there anymore", is a statement that I have heard many times. I don't know who the person is that made that statement first, but it should be made by every child of God. Paul wrote, "Therefore, if anyone is in Christ, he is a new creature; old things have passed away; behold all things have become new." (2 Cor. 5:17).

Because we are children of God, the Christian no longer has to worry about past sins. "Then Peter said to them, Repent and let everyone of you be baptized in the name of Jesus Christ for the remission of sins; and you shall receive the gift of the Holy Spirit." (Acts 2:38). Notice that Peter said that the person who repented of their sins and were baptized have their sins forgiven. To have one's sins forgiven means that they are gone; that your life is now one that is cleansed. We all know that it is the blood of Christ that does the cleansing but God has told us to be baptized into Christ too (Gal. 3:26-27).

Paul also reminded the Corinthian what they had been and what they had become (1 Cor. 6:9-11). In this new state of being reconciled to God, they had been washed, sanctified, and justified in the name of Christ.

There may be some consequences for past sins, but those sins are no longer held against one by God.

Sin not longer resides in us, we moved!

Still a Band of Brothers

Bowling Green runs past Anderson for state title

By John Herndon
Sports Editor

BOWLING GREEN - In the end, they were still a Band of Brothers.

Anderson County's football team bled and sweated together in the pre-season. They rejoiced together after wins over Conner and Southwestern.

And Saturday night, they shed tears together, but did so with pride.

Just as many had predicted, the Bearcats were no match for Bowling Green High School in the Russell Athletic/Commonwealth Gridiron Bowl state Class 5A championship football game.

Bowling Green put the finishing touches on the championship season its players have been pointing to since middle school with a 55-3 win over Anderson's Band of Brothers in the final. Few gave the Bearcats much of a chance and the Purples confirmed that, putting the contest away in less time than it took them to drive across town to L.T. Smith Stadium at Western Kentucky University.

"We just couldn't keep up with their speed," said Anderson quarterback Seth Carmichael.

By the end of the first quarter, Bowling Green had a 20-0 lead and a total offense advantage of 182-4. Anderson held the ball better than seven minutes and still trailed by three touchdowns.

"They are the best team we have played since I have been here," said Anderson coach Mark Peach, who returned to lead the Bearcats in 2005 and ity also finished unbeaten seasons on finals weekend.

Anderson, which was making its first state championship appearance in history, finished with a school record 12 wins against three losses.

"Bowling Green is extremely well-coached," Peach continued. "They are a great, great football team."

The records agree with Peach as the 52-point margin was the largest in the history of the state championship games, which began in 1959.

But that did not deter the Bearcats.

"It hurts really bad right now, but I am proud of everybody I played with," said Anderson receiver Matt Sprague. "(Bowling Green was) extremely talented on both sides of the ball."

Anderson actually held Bowling Green to three-and-out on the Purples' first possession, but the next five times the Purples had the ball, they scored. They also went the distance on their first two plays of the second half, a 75-yard run by Scooter Hollis and a 70-yard jaunt by K.J. Cofer.

Defensively, the Purples simply did not allow the Bearcats room to breathe.

"Our running backs were not able to get any room," Carmichael said. "They would ended that season losing to eventual Class AAA champion Lexington Catholic.

"Bowling Green could be better than that," Peach said. "They are big. They are fast. They two-platoon."

On the two-deep depth chart provided by the KHSAA, Bowling Green, which had 30 seniors on its roster, had just three players listed as going both ways, none of which started on both sides of the ball. Anderson had 16 players listed in the two-deep with six starting both ways.

The Purples' crown completed a perfect 15-0 season and left Bowling Green as one of three undefeated teams in Kentucky. Highlands and Trin-be bottled up and cut back but there would be no room there."

For the game, Anderson totaled a minus-7 yards on the ground, with 48 yards being deducted from the total when the Purples sacked Carmichael four times.

By the time the Bearcats even threatened to score, they were down 27-0.

Anderson did put together a nice second-quarter drive, moving 64 yards in 14 plays, but the march stalled at the Bowling Green 3 when Carmichael could not connect with an open Sprague in the end zone on third down.

Bearcats run into really good team

There is a universal truth when you are talking about championship sports: If you get far enough, you will eventually run into somebody that's really good.

Make that REALLY good. It's been that way from the time they were running footraces at Olympia. It will be that way until the day ESPN goes under.

The only exception to that rule is if your team is the one that is really good.

Saturday night, Anderson County finally ran into a football team that was really good. No, make that REALLY good. And Bowling Green was really good at every position on the field.

"They are big. They are fast. They two-platoon," Anderson coach Mark Peach said.

Brown leads Lady Bearcats to big lead as Anderson cruises

Sydney Brown scored 15 points to lead Anderson County to an easy 64-35 win over visiting Lafayette in the season-opening girls' basketball game for both teams Tuesday night.

Brown connected on 7-of-9 shots from the field, scoring at will against the smaller Lady Generals. Eriel McKee added 14 points for the Lady Bearcats while Makenzie Cann scored 11.

Anderson scored the first 13 points of the contest and forged a 21-3 lead after a quarter. Lafayette was never closer and by early in the third quarter, the Lady Bearcats had tripled the score at 39-13.

"I thought our focus was very good tonight," said Anderson coach Tony Kays. "Our defense was good."

Anderson, ranked as high as eighth in the state in pre-season polls, use relentless pressure to force 28 turnovers, repeatedly leading to breakaway baskets. The Lady Bearcats hit on 53.1 percent of their shots from the field.

"Sydney was able to establish herself down low," Kays said.

Anderson scored when Eriel McKee got a breakaway layup just 20 seconds into the contest. "It was good to start off with that big run early. We were able to play a lot of kids and use some different combinations."

"It was a good team effort and a good start, but we have a lot of work to do. We have a tough one

Bill Rose came on to kick a 20-yard field goal with 3:13 to play in the first half for Anderson's only points of the night.

"We haven't seen speed like that on defense all year," said Carmichael, who ended the season as the leading passer in 5A, but hit on just 15 of 35 throws for 127 yards Saturday night. Missing Sprague for what could have been a touchdown had more to do with Bowling Green's Armando Music getting into the backfield and forcing Carmichael to throw pre-maturely.

Four plays after Rose's field goal, Hollis put to rest any thought of a miracle comeback with a 16-yard scoring scamper. Hollis, a two-way threat at quarterback, ended the night with 103 yards and two touchdowns rushing along with 205 yards and a pair of scores throwing. He completed 8-of-9 passes.

As a team, Bowling Green put up 548 yards offense while Anderson could only muster 120. Bowling Green averaged 14.1 yards on 39 snaps while Anderson could only move the ball 2.2 yards per snap in 55 plays.

After Cofer's second touchdown put Bowling Green up 48-3, the game clock started running continuously with 5:25 left in the third quarter.

"This team was about as dominant as we have had in the playoffs, that's for sure," Bowling Green coach Kevin Wallace said.

On the season, the only team that stayed within three touchdowns of Bowling Green was perennial power St. Xavier, which fell 28-20 on Sept. 2. In the five playoff games, Bowling Green's average margin of victory was almost 42 points a game.

"We tried everything to slow them down," Peach said. "We went on different counts. We went on one. We went on two.

We went on three."

Nothing worked.

"I don't think we were intimidated at all," Carmichael said. "They were just that good."

"It wasn't from a lack of effort on our part," Sprague added. "They just had the better go round this time."

Yet, even down 34-3 and needing nothing short of a miracle to take the school's first state football championship, Peach reminded his Band of Brothers of what put them on their stage in the first place.

"He told us just to relax and that we still had another half of football to play," Sprague said.

And the Bearcats did what they could but Bowling Green just had too many weapons as the Purples captured their first state championship since 1995.

Peach tried to put things in perspective.

"I told the guys I was so proud of them. I told them Hazard had gotten here a couple of times before they broke through and won (Class 1A) this year. They learned from that experience," he said. "We learned from our experience this year and hopefully there will be more championship runs in the future."

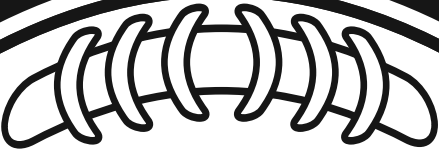

"We don't want this to be a one-time thing."

And even though their careers ended one step short of the ultimate dream, Anderson's seniors vow to still be part of Anderson County's Band of Brothers. Some openly wept after receiving the state runner-up trophy. They hugged each other and they filled Facebook and Twitter with messages of the sort late Saturday night and on Sunday.

"Never thought it would be over this fast ... but I love every single one of my brothers," Spencer Ruggles wrote on his Facebook account.

Added Sprague, "I wouldn't have wanted to play with anyone else or for anyone else."

These young Bearcat fans showed their allegiance during Saturday's state championship game at Bowling Green. The Anderson-Bowling Green game had the highest attendance of the six championship games last weekend.

Anderson County's Seth Carmichael receives the 'Best and Brightest' award from the Kentucky National Guard following Saturday's state final. Carmichael was the Anderson County selection based on football ability and academic excellence.

Peach says finals bring back fond memories

Anderson County football coach Mark Peach has not been a regular in making the state championship game as a head coach but he's not a stranger to playing on the final weekend, either. "This week, it all came back to me," Peach said after Thursday's community pep rally at Anderson County High School. Peach had taken Hancock County to the finals 12 years ago. Peach said he has received many calls and e-mails from former teammates and coaching friends congratulating him on taking Anderson to the state championship game for the first time in school history. "I had some e-mails saying 'congratulations,' from people we didn't know who they were," Peach said with a laugh. He did newspaper and television interviews all week long and has allowed access to the players on his team, giving them memories for a lifetime. "We have a job to do Saturday night, but we also want the kids to enjoy this time, too," Peach said Thursday.

Bearcats prepped at UK

With the rains of early last week turning the Anderson County practice facilities into a near quagmire, the Bearcats traveled to the University of Kentucky to practice last Tuesday and Wednesday. The Bearcats were able to work out on the Wildcats' artificial turf practice field in preparation for playing on the fake grass Saturday night.

The move was approved by the UK compliance department and the NCAA.

Bearcat fans turn out in droves

A large number of Anderson fans made the two-hour drive to Bowling Green to see the state championship game. While impossible to tell how many tickets each school sold, the total paid attendance for the Class 5A final was 8,623, the largest crowd of any of the six games held at Western Kentucky University over the weekend. Anderson fans filled the lower bowl of their side of the field between the 20-yard lines and practically filled the club seats in the upper deck on that side of L.T. Smith Stadium. Even though Anderson's opponent was playing in its hometown, most estimates had the crowd totals between Anderson and Bowling Green roughly equal. "That was very touching," Peach said. "We have had great fan support all year." "It was an adrenaline rush and great to have all the support we had," senior Matt Sprague said.

Another former Bearcat, two former Bengals coach

Former Anderson County player Stephen Hatchell was also coaching during finals weekend. Hatchell, who played at Anderson in 1997 before transferring to Graves County when his father, Coach Anthony Hatchell, switched schools, served as the offensive coordinator for Mayfield High School in the Class A final. Previously unbeaten Mayfield lost, however, to Hazard. Stephen Hatchell also played one year for Peach at Campbellsville University. The weekend was kinder to a pair of former Cincinnati Bengals players. Bruce Kozerski, the center on the great Bengals' teams of the early 1980s, led Covington Holy Cross to its first state championship in the Class 2A final. Former All-Pro receiver Cris Collinsworth, who is also now an NFL commentator, served as an assistant coach with Class 4A titlist Highlands.

At least one Bearcat fan has a bit of purple and gold blood

Local woman's grandfather led Bowling Green High for many years

By John Herndon
Sports Editor

At least one Lawrenceburg resident has plenty of Bowling Green blood in her veins, but she was bleeding red on Saturday night.

"Heading down to watch the Bearcats in the (state football) finals is exciting to me but because it will be in Bowling Green, playing the Purples at Western Kentucky University makes it even more special. Bowling Green is my home away from home and always has been," Tamara Smith, of Lawrenceburg, said last Thursday.

While she graduated from Anderson County High School in 1993 and is married to one of the greatest football players in Bearcat history, Joe Smith, Tamara has a very strong connection to Bowling Green High.

"It is where both of my parents are from, Steve and Sandra Barriger. My granddaddy, Denval Barriger, got the basketball head coaching position at Bowling Green High School in 1956. He was a long time coach and teacher there and then became principal of BGHS in 1972," she continued.

Denval Barriger served as principal of the school and served on many athletic boards, including the Kentucky High School Athletic Association, until he retired in 1982. A year ago, he and his wife, Juanita, moved to Lawrenceburg to be closer to his family. Denval Barriger passed away in May.

"Although Granddaddy had been a basketball coach, he was closer to the football program, players and coaching staff when he was principal," Smith says. "The coach at the time was Wilson Sears and they were very good friends. Of course my grandparents were at every game and even after he retired in 1982. He never missed a Bowling Green High School ballgame."

Tamara Smith, who works at Century Bank in Lawrenceburg, says some of her fondest memories from childhood center around visits to her parents' hometown. Steve Barriger, who had played football and basketball at Bowling Green and was teaching and coaching at Anderson County, would take his daughter to Bowling Green High School to visit her grandfather.

"I can remember his office, huge desk, getting candy from his secretary, listening to him read the school announcements on an old school PA system with a huge microphone," she says. "Sometimes late at night, he'd unlock the school's indoor swimming pool to let me swim!"

"I used to think that they had the coolest mascot and school colors. Everything he had was bright purple and gold, from hats, chairs, coffee mugs, golf tees and even his purple socks, which my little brother Gary Joe and I used to crack up over when he wore them."

But Saturday night, Tamara

Barriger Smith, was decked out in red, white and navy blue as the Bearcats took the field on the Western Kentucky University campus.

"I have been to many Anderson County games this year with Joe, even the cold ones when hardly anyone else showed up and especially the one when they beat Conner (for the regional championship.) We were speechless after that game and going out on the field with the team, coaches and community made that trip up there worthwhile.

"There is just something special beyond words when you stand around in the team prayer holding hands with childhood friends like Daryn Harvey and Chris Russell who now have sons playing on the team.

"And it was classic when Joe and our best friend Chris Glass, who, of course, played football there with Joe, gave each other a huge hug and a high five. I don't know if there was anyone else there who was as excited as the two of them."

Just like the rest of Anderson County, the Smiths were ready. Joe Smith played on some of Anderson's best teams but those teams could never overtake the powerhouses at Danville.

He has stayed close to the program.

The reality that Anderson County would come up one game short set in early Saturday night.

"When our boys ran out on the field I couldn't help but hope that they'd play smart, not be overwhelmed and just live up the moment," Tamara Smith said. "When the Bowling Green boys ran out, they just kept coming! Wow! They had tons of players but that was to be expected."

"I wish things could have turned out better for them game wise but that's the difference in a small (town) school and a big city school."

And even though Bowling Green solidified its claim as one of Kentucky's best ever at Anderson County's expense, the memory of seeing the Bearcats playing the state's final game of the year will be vivid.

"It's easier said than done," Tamara Smith said, "but I hope that the team can agree with what my 8-year-old daughter Sophie said later that night, 'Really Mommy it's not about winning. It's about playing hard and having fun.'"

"She is truly right! They made it and that is what really counts."

Anderson County sophomore Tristan Ashburn contemplates what might have been after the Bearcats lost to Bowling Green in the state championship game.

HERNDON

"They are extremely well-coached. That is a great combination. They are a great, great football team."

Many long-time observers felt the new state Class 5A champions are the best team in Bowling Green's long history. I haven't seen Bowling Green play enough over the years to say for sure, but I can say that Bowling Green is one of the best high school football teams I have ever laid my eyes on.

Realistically, Anderson knew its chances were slim, that the Bearcats had to play well and hope for Bowling Green to have an off night. The talk leading up to the game sometimes made its way to the fact that the finals were not a series, like the NBA or Major League Baseball.

Anderson had to just be better one time.

That was true and it was Anderson's only real hope of the upset.

It just did not happen.

But even though the Purples put a 55-3 whipping on Anderson County that was the largest championship margin in Kentucky history, there was something else being said even as the teams were warming up.

Anderson County had an awfully good football team in 2011, too. If you get far enough, you will run into someone really good.

And to get to the point where only two teams remain, both teams are very good.

Yes, there are upsets in tournament play. There are surprises. But no team plays in the final game of the season, no matter what the sport, by fluke. It simply does not happen.

And Saturday night, Anderson County was there.

Yes, Bowling Green was better. No question about that. The Purples rightfully deserve the label "special" that is reserved for the best of the best. You just tip your hat and congratulate them.

But when you look back at the 2011 season, you saw Anderson County travel into uncharted territory. The Bearcats won a regional title. They hosted a state semifinal game.

And they were on the field when they kicked it off to play for the biggest trophy of them all.

To get that far you have to be good and you have to have some luck along the way.

People who will look at that 55-3 final and ignorantly ask "How did Anderson get there?" don't understand just how good Bowling Green was. And they forget that before the season, many were saying the teams that would be playing on Dec. 3 would be Bowling Green and Anderson County.

For much of the year, though, Anderson had been a bit under the radar. That was undoubtedly because the Bearcats were beaten soundly in their opener by Bryan Station, a team that had won just one game in 2010.

It could have served as a wake-up call to Anderson, but it put doubt in the minds of some living across the county line.

There is no question Anderson had some good fortune this year. A week after taking a drubbing from Franklin County, the Bearcats caught a very good East Jessamine team without its best player, maybe the best running back in Kentucky.

In the playoffs, the two teams that were supposed to send Anderson packing, Franklin County and Harlan County, went home themselves the week before playing Anderson.

But to focus on those things overlooks some other very important stories from the Anderson season.

The Bearcats had a ton of injuries in the lines, the places where it appeared Anderson could least afford them. Mark Peach knew his line was potentially good, but needed time to jell as a group. After Labor Day, Anderson was not full strength in the line until the playoffs started the first week of November.

And, even though there was a little bit of good fortune along the way, Anderson got to the finals by doing what it could with the situation at hand.

When South Oldham erased a big lead to tie things in the fourth quarter, Anderson responded with an impressive game-winning drive. Down nine at Conner, the Bearcats fought back and eventually won with a methodical game-winning drive that ended on a fourth-down pass from Seth Carmichael to Matt Sprague with 43 seconds to play.

Against Montgomery County and Southwestern, the Bearcats hit so hard and so quickly that those games were over almost as soon as they started.

In other words Anderson focused on what it could do and then did it.

That is what being a winner is all about.

Saturday night, that was all the Bearcats could do. And no one will ever take what they did this year away.

I know that from experience.

As a sophomore in high school, I was manager of the Anderson County basketball team. We eventually made the Sweet 16, but in the first round, we ran into Louisville Central.

We had a good team, but they were REALLY good, as in the eventual state champs and the team generally ranked as the best high school team in America that year.

Yes, I still remember the 87-58 final score.

But the memory of rushing the floor at Henry County after we beat Scott County for the regional title is greater.

Seeing Cawood Ledford, only the greatest play-by-play man of all time, seated not far from our bench to call our state tournament game meant we had made the big show.

And I still have the gold basketball presented to each of us. No one can take that away from me.

This year's Anderson County football team may have run into a great opponent but they did so on the night they were playing for a state championship.

And no one can take that away.

Basketball Bearcats open with overtime road win

Gordon buries eight 3's as Anderson outlasts Washington

By John Herndon
Sports Editor

The old mixed with the new Friday night as the Anderson County boys' basketball team opened the season with a 69-61 overtime win at Washington County.

Senior guard Lowell Gordon buried eight 3-pointers and led Anderson with a career-high 31 points. Records are limited, but it is believed Gordon's output sets a school record for long-range bombing. Gordon connected on 8-of-12 shots from 3-point land.

But the Bearcats had to win in overtime with Gordon on the bench as he fouled out late in the game. Washington tied the game with two free throws with 1.4 seconds to play.

"Washington hit some tough shots late to tie the game," said Anderson assistant coach Bryan Hyatt said. "We told our guys they would have to be great defensively in overtime and they were. Jay Smith hit some huge foul shots down the stretch in overtime to seal the deal."

Anderson struggled early with a lineup that included three players (Luke Mann, Kyle Sutherland and Smith) who had little varsity experience. A large number of players expected to start or play key reserve roles for the Bearcats were still missing due to their commitment to the school's football team, which was playing for the state championship the next night.

The Bearcats got untracked in the second half, opening a 9-point lead before Washington made its run to tie things.

"We felt that our guys really showed a lot of mental toughness to maintain poise and mental awareness through the overtime," said Anderson assistant Daniel Drury. "For us to have a successful season, we are going to have to show this kind of toughness every night."

Austin Linzy came off the bench to score 12 points for the Bearcats.

"We started the (second) half trying to get Jay the ball in the lane and he found people for great shots. That really led to Linzy becoming a major factor.

Anderson now hosts a nice Garrard County team in its home opener on Thursday at 7:30 p.m.. The Bearcats will travel to Whitley County for a game against the Colonels on Saturday.

Lexington Catholic bombs away to defeat Lady Bearcats

By John Herndon
Sports Editor

No matter how much the game changes, the main object of basketball has remained the same since Dr. Naismith was looking for a peach basket.

Make shots. It is still that simple.

Lexington Catholic made 11 shots from beyond the three-point line to defeat host Anderson County 60-51 in a battle of girls' basketball teams ranked in the pre-season Top 15 on Friday night.

"We didn't defend the three at all," Anderson coach Tony Kays said.

Senior guard Bonnie Rhule got Lexington Catholic going with a home run just 16 seconds into the contest, then after Anderson had come back to take a brief lead, Rhule gave Catholic the lead for good with another 3-ball that made it 14-11 late in the first quarter.

The Lady Knights' advantage expanded to 11 points on two separate occasions, but Anderson rallied to cut the lead to two with a chance to tie or take the lead twice but turnovers and poor shot selection did the Lady Bearcats in each time.

It was that kind of night for the Lady Bearcats. "The team that won tonight deserved to win," said Kays. "Some of our kids thought they were ready to play but they weren't. Lexington Catholic was just the better team tonight."

Emily Johns, who ironically did not hit a three-pointer all night, led Catholic, which was playing in its season opener, with 15 points. Sydney Brown led Anderson with 11.

The Lady Bearcats fell to 1-1.

Catholic jumped to a quick 6-0 lead, but Anderson ran off nine points in 50 seconds to go up 9-6. But after Rhule's second bomb, the Lady Bearcats never regained the lead.

With Anderson sophomores Makenzie Cann and Eriel McKee, both ranked among the state's best in their class, sitting on the bench with two fouls each, Lexington Catholic spurred to a 25-15 lead, prompting Kays to signal for a timeout midway through the second quarter.

After Brown sank a jumper, Elizabeth Walton buried her third straight 3-pointer to make it 28-17.

Anderson made a run to cut the margin to 33-30 when Corrin Robinson made a steal, passed to Destiny Stewart, then took Stewart's return pass for a basket as time expired in the first half.

Robinson, a freshman, got Anderson within 33-32 with a drive to start the second half, but Anderson could get no closer.

After Catholic surged ahead again Anderson rallied, pulling within 44-43 when Cann banked one home with 15.6 seconds left in the third frame but Catholic took total control again early in the fourth frame. The lead reached 10 points just over three minutes into the fourth frame, and the Lady Bearcats were never closer than seven the rest of the way.

"Some things didn't go as we thought they should," Kays said.

"This was probably good for us. I schedule games like this to see where we are. Tonight, we failed the test."

Junior varsity rallies late to win

Alex Avritt scored all five of her points in the final minute as the Anderson junior varsity defeated Lexington Catholic 27-23.

Avritt hit a big three-pointer to put the Lady Bearcats up 24-23 with 58 seconds to play, then hit a couple of free throws to ice the win.

Kali Whiteside led Anderson with 11 points.

Academy rips Georgetown, Winchester, Somerset

From staff reports

The Christian Academy of Lawrenceburg Rams recently defeated the Georgetown Crusaders, a home schooled group, 67-41.

From the start the Rams outmanned the Crusaders. Coming off a loss last week, CAL coach Cory Robinson said he was not satisfied with sloppy play early in the game against Georgetown. He pulled the starters within the first minutes, apparently getting their attention, as the Rams outscored Georgetown 31-5 in the second quarter.

Matthew Robinson put on a shooting clinic in the second quarter with 10 points in rapid succession as CAL built a 46-31 lead at the half. Robinson played the CAL junior varsity team for the remainder of the game, using a total of 19 players.

Dillon Harper claimed top honors being the team's high scorer with 16 points.

The game, played at the Early Childhood Center Gymnasium, drew 164 fans.

CAL 63, Winchester Christian 24

The Christian Academy of Lawrenceburg Rams defeated Winchester Christian Academy 63-24 to improve to 5-1 on the year.

From the tip off the Rams played fast-paced offense, and applied good defensive pressure. The defense led to many fast breaks on the offensive end.

Senior Jared Slaughter caused Winchester Christian trouble with his quickness and scored 11 points in the first half, many coming off steals and deflections. Matthew Robinson again led CAL players with 14 points, all in the first half as CAL built a 49-8 halftime lead.

In the second half CAL head coach Cory Robinson went deep to his bench. Reserve point guard Evan McCreary kept the CAL offense going while Aron Dennis showed great leaping ability and strong rebounding efforts, the coach said.

Robinson said he was pleased with the team's effort.

"The boys came out and executed offensively and picked up our intensity on defense. The boys pushed the ball well, and gave me a chance to work on my rotations," he said.

CAL 48, Somerset Christian 28

On the Tuesday before Thanksgiving, the Christian Academy of Lawrenceburg boys' basketball team defeated visiting Somerset Christian Academy 48-28.

The Rams started the game with a new addition to the starting lineup. Forrest Bowman earned his first opportunity to move into the first five this year.

The Rams' defense held Somerset Christian to just 28 points for the game by controlling their movement defensively so that fouls were never a factor.

The Ram offense also seems to be coming together with improvement on rapid ball movement, which kept the Crusaders defense off balance.

CAL big men took advantage of the improvement. Zach Gray was the team's high-scorer with 12 points and Logan Lynn added nine, with most of their points in the paint.

Christian Academy head coach Cory Robinson said he "was pleased that his team did a very good job defensively, but they seemed a little out of synch offensively. This was a win against a good team."

LEGAL NOTICESMASTER COMMISSIONER'S SALE

In order to comply with the orders of the Anderson Circuit Court, the Master Commissioner will sell the property described in the following actions on Thursday, December 15, 2011, at 11:00 a.m. in the Anderson County Courthouse, Lawrenceburg, Kentucky. The property shall be sold to raise the amounts herein-after set forth, together with interest and the costs of this action, and upon the following terms and conditions (unless otherwise indicated):

(1) At the time of the sale, the successful bidder shall either pay cash or make a deposit of ten percent (10%) of the purchase price, with the balance on credit for thirty (30) days. In the event the successful bidder elects to credit the balance, he or she will be required to post bond and furnish surety acceptable to the Master Commissioner. The bond shall be for the unpaid purchase price and bear interest and the rate of twelve percent (12%) per annum until paid in full.

(2) PLEASE NOTE: The real estate SHALL BE SOLD SUBJECT TO

ALL city, state, county, and school real estate taxes, whether current or delinquent.

(3) Where the real estate has insurable improvements, the successful bidder shall, at his or her own expense, carry fire and extended coverage insurance on said improvements from the date of sale until the purchase price is fully paid, to the extent of the Court appraised value of said improvements or the unpaid balance of the purchase price, whichever is less, at a minimum, with a loss clause payable to the Master Commissioner or the appropriate Plaintiff. Failure of the successful bidder to effect such insurance shall not affect the validity of the sale or the successful bidder's liability thereunder, but shall entitle, but not require, the Plaintiff(s) to effect said insurance and furnish the policy or evidence thereof to the Master Commissioner, if it so desires, and the premium thereon or the property portion thereof shall be charged to the successful bidder's cost.

(4) The property shall otherwise be sold free and clear of any right, title and interest of all parties to the action and of their liens and encumbrances thereon excepting easements and restrictions of record in the Anderson County Clerk's Office, and such right of redemption which may exist in favor of the United States of America or the Defendant(s), and any matters disclosed by an accurate survey and inspection of the property.
